- Which existing websites out there most inspired your web site design thus far?

    jasminestarblog.com

- Which parts of the design are you most proud of?

    The photo grid.

- What struggles did you encounter in your design process?

    The design struggles I encountered had a lot to do with the limitations of html and css. Knowing that keeping it simple would make coding less complicated made for an easier process.

- Which struggles did you encounter during page development?

    Coding the photo grid. Used a few examples of coding and was unsuccessful at having the same results.

- What did you learn from making your project responsive?

    I learned that designing for smaller pages and then going larger would have been a better idea.